stability of the footing of Europeans in China, that such a publication as this should be established and conducted with apparently successful vigour. The publication is altogether a very interesting one, and wishing it every success, we commend it to the attention and support (From the "London Examiner," Man

THE CHINESE QUESTION. THE Spectator, in an able article from which we quote in another column, has the latest news from the North. Tseng correctly described the present state of mereover in ignorance of the events of tional honors! The literati at Yangthe last month, the author has been sinchow have been officially thanked for gularly happy in pointing out the results their share in the recent outrage! &c. which will inevitably follow a compliance &c. It is needless to multiply examples. Such is one source of Mandarin hatred, with the proposal that the Chinese should resume the rights which are at present however, to follow up one of the remarks he has made to which it is very probable sufficient importance has not been attachstates that the mandarins " hate foreigners," but seems himself to be scarcely aware of how much is convoyed by that resisting excessive squeezes, and, the phrase. The "hatred" in question is currently believed to be rather the result of native superciliousness than of purely interested motives, and those unacquainted with the internal administration of the empire are at some loss to perceive the real causes of a dislike which undoubted ly exists, and which, it is popularly believed, will disappear as foreigners be appreciating the points in which we are exceeding 8 oz.; and 28 cents for every come better known. We would endeayour to shew, firstly the real causes of this latent hostility, and secondly the tolerate the new state of affairs induced improbability of any peaceful measures by our presence until it has become evitending to remove this great barrier to dent that upon foreign interest alone, our intercourse with the Chinese nation directly or indirectly, can they rely for

The presence of foreigners alone has hitherto prevented an emeute, a belief existing that any such measure would result in foreigners taking into their own hands the disposal of the throne and regency. The existence of this war party however is as well known in the provinces as at the capital, while its chances of eventually again coming into power have been exaggerated in the former. The governing party have, again, in their more H. & S. Bank Shares, Old, 20 a 21 per c. pm confidential communications allowed it to seem that their sympathies are rather with the anti-foreign party than with us, and while invariably recommending or directing compliance with foreign demands. when there is no loophole of escape, continue to imply that they yield to stern necessity. The sentiment of dislike to foreigners, so often displayed in communications to the Peking authorities is never reprehended, although acts tending to embroil the Chinese with outsiders are frequently repudiated or censured. From these circumstances—the existence of an important party which does not conceal its anti-foreign proclivities, and the permitted belief that the party in power would be obstructive if it could—a firm belief has been implanted in the official mind of the provinces that while active opposition may be dangerous, all communications relating to the general | passive function when foreign interests business of this paper be addressed to the are threatened is welcome to Chinese superiors. The happiest man is he who can hit the golden mean of combining the greatest shew of friendliness with the greatest amount of real indifference to any injuries inflicted. The two parties are much in the position of the naval captain and midshipmen who pulled down the "Scotchman" of an objectionable tobacconist leaving it in the gut-"I must punish you, young gentleman," said the Captain, "But he added with a twinkle in his eye, "you might have buried the Scotchman." And so the Chinese often, while nominally punishing or reprimanding an obstructive official, continue to hint "that he might have buried the Scotchman," i.e., carried out his obstructive policy much further without incurring a heavier reprimanda bint which it is needless to say is duly taken. As all promotion comes from the capital-and as by a singular fortune those who have been most obstructive to foreigners find that they rise quickest—the consequences of this policy are pretty evident. If confirmation be wanting; let us turn to Kwo-fan, who refused Mr Medhurst's demands, has been appointed Governor General of Chih-li, the Capital province!! Li Hung Chang too has obtained addi-backed by the apparently hearty concurrence of the British Minister. Our second assertion-that foreign intercourse reduces the incomes of the Mandarins—scarcely needs demonstration. The establishment of the foreign Customs has completely cut off the squeezes at the open ports and to a large extent those levied in the surrounding districts. But more than that it has imbued a vast number of Chinese at the chief commercial centres with the idea of names of foreigners are freely used in the interior to frighten the officials into the belief that if too heavy a tax is demanded they will interfere—and this too in cases when no foreigner whatever is interested. It is a dread lest the results which have attended foreign intercourse at the open ports should extend to, inland cities which keeps up the " hatred" of the official class. Personally, we believe them quite capable of superior and of ungrudgingly admitting them, in confidential intercourse. But we have no hope that they will officially got to saying that Portugal is not sufficiently civilized to hold a colony in the immesuch as Macao is to Hong ong-and advise the Chinese to possess themselves of our Colony: an undertaking which, say the same journals, would be most easy and might be put through in six hours, considering that with a very small force one ing neither troops, munitions of war, nor experienced officers; and that the Chinese Portuguese flag to continue to wave over Macaq. All this we read in the China Mail, a Hongkong journal, apropos of the rumour which was circulated to the effect that an order had been transmitted from Portugal to the Annamite affair : we furthermore read in the same journal that £2000 have come to Portugal to corrupt somebody or extended to those interested in emigration business, and more especially those implicated in the Annamite affair.

These journals but thinly disguise the insinuation that Senhor Amaral, the Minister of Marine, may have had a portion of the £2,000 as the price of his supposed corruption. We know that Sr. Horta has summoned the Editor of the China Mai before the court in order to answer for his defamatory articles. It appears however that the report as to the suspension of proceedings against the Annamite-stealers caused a profound impression at Macao. It is a very scandalous business mon which public attention has thus been fixed, and if the order to suspend proceedings was really given one cannot doubt that it was the most imprudent which could have been issued. It is said that the Chi nese are constructing 30 well-armed gunboats, commanded by English and French officers, and it is suspected that the order to suspend proceedings may be taken advantage of as appretext for a Chinese attack on Macao. Thus it is that the Portuguese Colony is exposed to the insults of the Chinese, who only seek an opportunity of repossessing themselves of it, and is furthermore subject to English menaces and English ambition. We cannot attribute to the Government or to the English authorities in China the insolent and impudent assertions of the China Mail: but it is indubitable that they seek by every means to discredit the government of the Colony and to provoke the Chinese to an aggression.

A correspondent of the Echo de Poco of Hougkong makes an atrocious outery against the Viscount of Praia Grande and attributes to him an injurious influence upon Macao affairs. It appears that Senhor Horta has likewise entered the lists against that journal also. What we see is, however, that the situation of Macao is an embarrassing one and that that colony is in want of shelter from any unforseen attack. The China Mail in advising the Chinese to take Macao tells them that neither England or France would intervene, and that the Macaenses would chant a Te Deum when they found themselves free from Portuguese dominion.

To secure the Colony against such insults from whatever quarter is an imperious duty; such it appears to us in the face of all that has taken, and is taking, place. We do not believe that the pig dealers, those concerned in the Annamite piracy, have sent £2000 to Portugal; and if they have sent it, there is no Minister or high functionary who would disgrace himself by receiving the vile price for impunity paid by dealers in human flesh. This is what selves we are most certain that Senhor Amaral is increable of receiving money to neglect his duty. But throughout this affair may be seen the truth of what we some time since said about Macao. If we do not have justice we shall eventually have to remove thence, as we have had to do elsewhere:

Defendant had better go home and whip his little bey for doing so; but that would not prevent him from fining defendant in the sum of $20, and advise him to fire no more crackers to the danger of passers by. It is not difficult, now that Mr. Burling. ame's Treaty has been published, to perceive the line of policy upon which Court of Pekin is entering, and which, the European Powers, and more especially Great Britain, are not firm, will lead at no distant period to a fourth or fifth Chinese war. Whatever may be the case in Turkey, it i quite certain that China is not yet fit for this change; that from the day it is effected the Foreign Offices of Europe will be inundated with just complaints of local tyranny, which will ultimately produce either a total cess ation of trade, -thereby exposing India to bankruptoy, and the British Exchequer to the loss of the tea revenue, -or demands on Pekin which must be supported by force. In the preceding hatred should be neutralized by treaty arrangements, than that every privatequarrel should involve danger of war. If the Consular Courts are not strong enough, they can be strengthened, or exceptional powers placed in the hands of the Embassies; but to abolish the Jurisdictions at once is to enable the Mandarins to edge the Europeans slowly out of China. It may be said that the Americans are willing to allow this, but the Americans are, of all foreigners, least dreaded by the Chinese: first, because they have never fought Pekin, and secondly, be cause their intercourse with the Empire other countries, the trade of China with Great Britain and her colonies was in

MISCELLANEOUS.

DIPLOMATIC SMALL CLOTHES .- In the course of a few days, says the Pall Mall Gazette, we shall have the new Minister from the United States among us, and almost the first question he will find it necessary to decide relates to the clothes he intends to wear on State occasions. Fortunately it is a question that need not cause him any great embarrassment. The Ameriowed to go anywhere they pleased in any corded. The ex-Minister to this country was more than once given to understand that Her Majesty would be happy to see him in such attire as he thought proper to assume, but Mr. Adams did not deem respectful to the English Monarch to walk into her presence in a garb which rendered him conspicuous, while the representatives of other Powers were not too proud to dress themselves in conformity with the usage of the Court. It thus happened that Mr. Adams was never seen at Royal receptions towards the end of his term. but a notice regularly appeared setting forth that the United States Minister was kept away "by unavoidable circumstances." This cause no diplomatic misunderstanding, for it was generally understood that the question at seue was nothing more serious than the cut of a worthy gentleman's coat and breeches

A PERSIAN NAVY. - With reference to the statement by the Indian Daily News to the effect that Persia wishes to be supplied with an English steam fleet, to paid for by contract and to be manned English officers, there is one preliminary objection which should prove fatal to the proposal. That is, Persia has no mercanile marine -whatever, not a single keel afloat as we are assured. THE money remitted to the Chancellor of the Exchenger by aundry persons for conscience sake in the financial year 1867 year repentance produced a larger sum £5,071, which was more than the Chancel lor's salary.

An agrarian outrage is reported, resul ng in the murder of two policemen in ipperary. On Friday morning Mr Wiliam Scully, brother of Mr Vincent Scully ormerly M. P. for Cork, repaired to evict thirty families on one of his estates. Anticipating resistance, he took a small party police to protect the bailiffs. A few of the tenants, warned of Mr Soully's approach, armed themselves and retired to barn, declaring that they did not wish to injure either the police or the bailiffs but that they would never surrender. The police advised Mr Scully to desist, but h appears to have determined on serving the notices. The result was that two policemen were shot dead, and several of the party including Mr Soully, were wounded. the inquest on Saturday an open verdict was returned, the jury appending an expression that Mr Scully's conduct was greatly to be deprecated, and calling on the legislature to take such action as would prevent a repetition of such a tragedy. THE Rochambeau ne Dunderberg must be a charming acquisition for the French. It will cost £400,000, (ten millions of francs,) and it leaks like a sieve—as much as 100 tons of water in 24 hours. THE CIVIL LIST.—Now that there has been some talk of an increase in the civil list, it is interesting to know the present amount of it, and the items which it comprehends. On the accession of Her Majesty to the throne, the annual sum of £385,000 was placed at her disposal, independent of the control of Parliament. Besides this, £1,200 a year is entrusted to her for pensions. The Prince of Wales now receives £40,000 a year; his Princess, £10,000; the Duke of Edinburgh, £15,000; the Crown Princess of Prussis, £8,000; Princess Louis, can Congress insisted some time ago that £6,000; Princess Christian, £6,000; the citizens of the United States should be al- Duchess of Cambridge, £6,000; the Duke of Cambridge, £12,000; the Duchess of sort of raiment, and the right is freely ac- Mecklenburg-Strelitz, £3,000; Princess of Teck. £5,000. Our Royal Family does not test the loyalty of the people so severely as did the "first gentleman in Enrope;" by getting into debt and calling upon the nation to get him out. It is said to require rigid economy on the part of the Prince of Wales to keep up the dignity of this position, and to make both ends meet.

CAUTION TO WITS .- Three of our most popular burlesque writers have recently been presented with twins by their loving wives. This triple-double coincidence has created much sympathy and aniusement in the literary world, and it has been suggested that as a souvenir of the event, the three "wags" should join in the production of an apropos burlesque, taking as a title Alles Bébée, or the Pas de Deux. It will be seen that burlesque writing is not all profit. and that it has its dangers .- Court Journal.

THE Russian Minister at Washington has presented to President Johnson a letter from the Czar, congratulating him upon the failure of the impeachment trial. If Congress had only heard of this letter before the Czar would not have received him money for Alaska quite so soon. But Baron Stoeckl, the Minister, is a diplomatist of old standing, and before he said a word to any one about the Czar's congratulations we may be sure that he had drawn his 7.200,000 gold dollars from the Treasury. He waited, too, for the adjournment of Convress. Baron Stoecki has always been considered a shrewd man.

THE working of the voluntary system in this country is evidently not entirely satisfactory to those who are engaged in it. The complaint which is made elsewhere that the ministers are starved is repeated here. This morning a correspondent writes to one of the papers to rebuke the Dissenters for their illiberality to their preschers. "In the most private details of religious life the policeman stands sentiuel over every Russian." Police regulations require him to attend church "with piety" and "without hurry" (art.3), not talk there, to treat the sacred pictures with due reverence (art. 6); not to move from one part to another; to show "awe, silence, recollection, and reverence" (art. 7); not to kiss the pictures except before or after the service (art. 8). all particulars of the church decorations are carefully prescribed, and useless ornaments out of keeping with the sacredness of the place and carved images are strictly forbidden.
